

Welcome to your favorite job!

Welcome to hosting for Trivia Mafia, the world's greatest bar trivia company.

Thank you for being a Trivia Mafia host! Nearly everyone who works here is, or has been, a host (including the founders, Chuck Terhark and Sean McPherson), and we want to make sure that you find as much enjoyment in the job as we do.

We depend on our hosts to be good ambassadors of our brand, professional partners for our customer sites, and joyful shepherds of trivial knowledge to the world at large. It's a big deal. But we also know that, for most hosts, this is your bonus-fun-extra-part-time job, and we want you to look forward to your next shift with confidence and excitement. So again: Thanks! Now let's get started.

This great Hosting Guide contains everything you need to know to host and run a trivia night for Trivia Mafia, plus a bunch of stuff that's simply good to know. However, at any time, with any questions, you may contact any of these fine folks:

Mary Kate Misak, Host Manager

Brenna Proczko, Executive Vice President

(651) 497-5441

Chuck Terhark, Owner-Operator

CHUCK@TRIVIAMAFIA.COM

(612) 423-4366

Use this contact list for any questions, comments, complaints, quibbles, or clarifications you may have relating to your trivia night, or for any employment-related things. Your primary point of contact should be the Host Manager, but continue down the list if they are not available.

Note: Questions about paychecks should be sent to payroll@triviamafia.com.

Remember: The best part of getting people together to play trivia is getting people together. Good trivia isn't trivial. Our hosts have had baby showers thrown for them, found their spouses among players, supported proposals between players, boosted small businesses, and helped families grow closer during a global pandemic. We take our jobs seriously, and we're serious about making it a good time.
